

Leading Spare Parts Distributor and Aviation Consultant Firm Announce Strategic Partnership to Enhance Compliance and Safety in the Aviation Industry

aps Aviation Parts Service GmbH (aps) and AeroEx GmbH (AeroEx) are proud to announce a strategic partnership agreement that will bring together our expertise and resources to better serve the international aviation community.

“aps is excited to embark on this joint path with AeroEx.”, said Wolfgang Dillbaum-Alexius, the General Manager of aps. “They understand the challenges of managing aerospace compliance and safety in this constantly changing industry. Their comprehensive and user-friendly software solution can help our customers to keep up with regulations, track obligations, plan and conduct audits and many more. This customer-oriented and solution-driven approach fits aps like a glove.”

aps has established themselves as a high-ranking full-range distributor of aircraft spare parts in General, Business, and Regional Aviation, with an extensive inventory of over 65,000 line items, making them one of the largest warehouses on the European continent. In addition to the sale of aircraft parts and accessories, they also offer an exchange and repair service for many aircraft components. Providing a diverse service portfolio and expert advice from experienced and helpful staff is a core value of aps' culture.

AeroEx is a Swiss-based EASA aviation consultant firm that offers a wide range of services to the international aviation community. They specialize in ensuring compliance with EASA aviation legislation and other relevant aviation regulations as well as international industry standards. Their services include audits and assessments, audit software, compliance monitoring, project management, training and workshops, SMS, IS-BAH and IS-BAO implementation, manuals, and interim management.

This partnership will focus on the distribution of AMAS.aero, a powerful software developed by AeroEx, that helps customers easily track and manage their compliance and safety requirements, saving them time and effort. AMAS.aero is an intuitive software that allows users to track regulations, manage audits and inspections, and handle non-conformities with ease. With real-time reporting and performance monitoring features, AMAS.aero ensures users stay on top of any safety events or incidents.

By combining our strengths, aps and AeroEx will be able to offer a wider range of products and services to the international aviation community and provide more comprehensive solutions to meet their needs. We will work closely together to share knowledge and resources, and collaborate on marketing and sales efforts.

We are excited about this opportunity to join forces with AeroEx and look forward to working together to achieve our shared goal of helping the international aviation community to ensure compliance with EASA aviation legislation and other relevant aviation regulations as well as international industry standards. This partnership is a significant step towards our goal of becoming the go-to provider for compliance and safety management in the aviation industry.
